

••• CONGRATULATIONS TO OUR TOWN ON ITS 150th BIRTHDAY •••

The Past Is But the Prelude to The Future

HOULTON IN 1892 . . .

IT IS A FACT . . .

You will not find a dead Chamber of Commerce in a live town . . . nor will you find a live Chamber of Commerce in a dead town.

A prosperous and thriving town like Houlton is a reflection of an alert Chamber of Commerce. Thus, the future of this town is closely linked with its active Chamber. Few realize the close relationship that exists between the welfare of each citizen of this community and the program that is the responsibility of their Chamber of Commerce.

This relationship does not exist solely between the various business segments of the community. It is as much a bond between the farmer, the

LEADERSHIP COUNTS . . .

Over the years . . . through good times and bad . . . men have striven to bring to their community the things that their community has wanted. The "better things in life" that we have enjoyed in Houlton have, for the most part, resulted from real leadership on the part of men in the community who have invested time, talents and their money to make Houlton a better place in which to live, work and play.

A community's progress is measured by the qualities of its leaders of the past. In this respect Houlton has been fortunate in the intelligence, foresight, generosity and self-sacrifice of the men who laid the firm foundation the responsibility of their Chamber of Commerce.

This relationship does not exist solely between the various business segments of the community. It is as much a bond between the farmer, the laborer, the professional man, the housewife, the clerk, the merchant and the banker. All are involved in the future well being of their community; all benefit in some degree from the efforts that are devoted to furthering a community's progress and expansion.

Houlton has had a splendid past, one of which all of our people can well be proud. If we will continue to work together an even more illustrious future is in store for this community. Your Chamber of Commerce hereby pledges itself to do its part.

A community's progress is measured by the qualities of its leaders of the past. In this respect Houlton has been fortunate in the intelligence, foresight, generosity and self-sacrifice of the men who laid the firm foundation on which their successors have builded so well . . . leaders who have been in the front ranks of Chamber of Commerce workers.

The Houlton Chamber of Commerce recognizes and strongly endorses the aims of the Houlton Regional Development Corporation and urges the whole hearted support of all to its high objectives.

Today, your Houlton Chamber of Commerce invites and welcomes one and all to attend the 150th Birthday celebration of your town.
